

For almost 50 year, Finnsecurity's goal has been to promote security in our society.

As Finland's longest-running association of security professionals, Finnsecurity develops the professional competence and team spirit of its members by networking and increasing co-operation with other security organizations, companies and authorities.

As a non-profit association, Finnsecurity is not an actual advocacy organization, but provides expert opinions to authorities, for example, upon request.

BECOME A MEMBER!

Finnsecurity is open to everyone: there is enough interest in the industry to join. In addition to security professionals and students, we have a significant representation of companies, communities and educational institutions in the field. Our membership is about 400. At Finnsecurity, you can join a network of professionals where you can share your own skills and learn new things. With us, you are involved in developing the security industry and contributing to the well-being of our entire society.

It only takes a moment to join:

ACTIVITIES

The biennial FinnSec trade fair is the most visible part of Finnsecurity's operations and at the same time the largest security event in the Nordic countries. At that time, you can get acquainted with the offerings of numerous exhibitors at the Helsinki Fair Center and listen to the lectures and information sessions included in the program.

The association has its own permanent working groups for every membership type (companies, associations and students).

In addition to the events, Finnsecurity encourages the development of the security industry by annually distributing awards and badges of merit, such as scholarships for meritorious theses.

MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS

Finnsecurity members receive the Safety & Risk Management magazine, which is published six times a year.

Monthly Member Newsletters, the opportunity to attend company visits, mini-seminars and other events, often free of charge or with a discount, keep members informed of developments in the field.

We encourage everyone to attend the association's spring and autumn meetings as well.

Corporate members are also served by the annual security business and industry review with changing topics and specific issues.
